

2010 AAAG Membership

The American Association of Anthropological Genetics (AAAG), an educational and scientific organization, was founded in 1994. AAAG aims to:

1. Promote the study of anthropological genetics, as this field is broadly defined
2. Facilitate communication between individuals engaged in the study of anthropological genetics
3. Foster cooperation among anthropological geneticists.

Membership is from January 1 - December 31 of each year, which may or may not match the period of your journal subscription. To join or renew an existing membership please visit our website at www.anthgen.org/aaag_membership.html, or return this form with your check for the appropriate membership fee to (for foreign members, bank drafts are also possible):

Diane M. Warren, PhD
 Secretary-Treasurer, AAAG
 Department of Anthropology
 University of Oklahoma
 455 W. Lindsey Ave., DAHT 521
 Norman, OK 73019

email: dmwarren@ou.edu

Categories of membership (please circle appropriate category):

Full member with Human Biology subscription, US mailing address	$98
Full member with Human Biology subscription, mailing address outside US	$176
Student member Human Biology subscription, US mailing address	$37
Student member Human Biology subscription, mailing address outside US	$115
Full member without journal subscription	$20
Student member without Journal subscription	$10

Includes $78 international shipping charge imposed by the publisher.

Member information (please complete all categories):

Name: _____

Mailing address: _____

E-mail address: _____

Phone number: _____

Fax: _____